THIS WEEK'S CHARTS

ANALYSED BY ALAN JONES

● GLORIA ESTEFAN: "have you got anything to take this Superglue off my finger they're stuck?"

● A year ago this week, Kylie Minogue's recording of 'The Loco-Motion' entered the chart at number two to become the highest debuting disc by a female solo star in UK singles chart history. Madonna subsequently equalled Kylie's feat with 'Like A Prayer' in March, but Kylie again debuted at number two with 'Hand On Your Heart' in May, and completes her hat-trick this week with 'Wouldn't Change A Thing'. Kylie's single sold around 70,000 copies last week, enough to guarantee the number one spot as often is not, but, after leading the race for top spot until Thursday, she was finally and very convincingly overhauled by Jive Bunny and the Mastermixers' loveable 'Swing The Mood', which sold nearly 100,000 copies in the week. 'Wouldn't Change A Thing' will now face an uphill struggle to reach number one. If it fails, Kylie will become only the second act in chart history to have two singles debut at number two without going to number one. The first? Bros, whose 'Too Much' dips to number four this week, after debuting at number two last week. They suffered a similar disappointment last December with 'Cat Amongst The Pigeons/Silent Night'. The only other singles to debut at number two and not reach number one are: the Beatles' 'Let It Be' (1979), the Sweet's 'Ballroom Blitz' (1973), Wham!'s 'Everything She Wants/Last Christmas' (1984), Rick Astley's 'When I Fall In Love' (1987) and Kylie's 'The Loco-Motion'.

● One of the fastest moving singles of the week is 'Poison' by Alice Cooper, which sprints from its debut position of number 34 to number 13, an impressive leap which makes it Alice's biggest hit since 'Teenage Lament '74' in (surprise, surprise) 1974.

● Kirsty MacColl's 'Days' moves up another two notches this week to number 12. Kirsty thus becomes the very first act to place a Kinks' hit as high on the chart as the original, which got to number 12 in 1968. The Fall came close last year, when their version of 'Victoria' reached number 35, two notches lower than the Kinks' 1970 original.

● Prince's 'Batdance' halts its slide this week, surprisingly climbing from number 24 to number 23. We can only assume that mounting excitement and publicity about the forthcoming 'Batman' movie has had a beneficial effect. Incidentally, if you are going to see 'Batman', don't expect to hear a great deal of Prince. Apparently his music is featured for only six minutes in the whole movie, with much of the incidental music supplied by Danny Elfman, whose alternative soundtrack album will be released to tie in with the film.

● Bobby Brown's 'King Of Stage' debuts at number 40 this week. It's not a new album, having been initially released in 1986, when it sold very poorly. The re-issue is priced at £3.99.

● 'Street Fighting Years' becomes the first Simple Minds' album to yield three top 20 hits this week, as their latest single 'Kick It In' climbs to number 15. It follows the number one hit 'Belfast Child' and 'This Is Your Land', which got to number 13. Since it was released three months ago, 'Street Fighting Years' has sold nearly half a million copies.

● Diesel Park West's fab new single 'When The Hoodoo Comes' makes a disappointingly quiet debut this week at number 66. It's the third top 75 hit off their fine debut album 'Shakespeare,

Alabama'. The first, 'All The Myths On Sunday', peaked at number 66 in February, whilst the second, 'Like Princes Do', reached number 58 in April. This column predicts that 'When The Hoodoo Comes' will build on its rather slow start to become a significantly bigger hit than its predecessors.

● Aswad register their fourth top 40 hit this week with 'On And On', a remake of a song first recorded by its writer Stephen Bishop in 1977.

Bearded and genial, 38-year-old Bishop, from California, is a highly under-rated talent, whose biggest and most recent success as a songwriter was 'Separate Lives', a number four hit for Phil Collins and Marilyn Martin in 1985.

Bishop has yet to register a hit here in his capacity as a singer, despite several worthy singles including 'On And On' and the poignant 'It Might Be You', which served as the theme to the Dustin Hoffman movie 'Tootsie' in 1983.

● Gloria Estefan and Miami Sound Machine's album 'Cuts Both Ways' enters the album chart at number one this week, just five months after they topped the chart with 'Anything For You'.

They thus become the first act to top the chart with two different albums in the same calendar year since Abba started in 1981 at number one with 'Super Trouper' and ended it similarly placed with 'The Visitors'. This calculation disregards Michael Jackson, who topped in 1983 with the solo album 'Thriller' and also '18 Greatest Hits', which includes his solo material and songs he recorded as member of the Jackson 5. 'Cuts Both Ways', incidentally, is credited only to Gloria Estefan, but this is a purely cosmetic move to give her more prominence. "The line-up is just as before I couldn't do it without these guys," says Gloria about husband Emilio and the rest of Miami Sound Machine. What Gloria says, we believe, so when we count down the top artists of 1989 at the end of the year, 'Cuts Both Ways' and its singles will be treated as Gloria Estefan and Miami Sound Machine records.

● ERRATUM: Last week I suggested that 'Too Much' missed out on becoming the first "regular" (non-charity) single to debut at number one since Frankie Goes To Hollywood's 'Two Tribes' somehow managed to forget that Jas Gawronski's 'Sealed With A Kiss' entered at number one a mere eight weeks ago.
