CHARTS

THIS WEEK'S CHART
ANALYSED BY ALAN JONES

Kate Bush's last album, the compilation 'The Whole Story', sold over a million copies, and Erasure's 'The Innocents' has sold over 900,000 and should eventually top a million too. Both reached number one.

With both releasing brand new, eagerly awaited albums last week, the battle for chart supremacy was fierce. Erasure's 'Wild!' eventually emerged triumphant, to become the seventh album to debut at number one in as many weeks. It is 18 months since 'The Innocents' made its chart topping debut.

It returned to number one again in January, 37 weeks after it was released. Erasure thus become the second act to have two number one albums this year, following the example of Gloria Estefan.

Had Kate's 'The Sensual World' won the race for chart honours it would have been her fourth number one. Instead, she remains tied with Barbra Streisand and Madonna as female soloist with most number one albums.

Increased competition has forced Jason Donovan's 'Ten Good Reasons' ever lower on the album chart in recent weeks, but it has just passed two important milestones. First, it topped a million sales, then it overtook INXS's 'Kick' to become the second biggest seller ever by an Aussie in Britain. Only 'Kylie — The Album' has sold more — but that's almost a million ahead.

Queen's last single, 'The Invisible Man', bore the catalogue number QUEEN12, whilst their latest hit 'Scandal' is numbered QUEEN13. But if superstition governed the group's decision (unannounced) to skip QUEEN13, it hasn't worked, because it looks very much like 'Scandal' will not advance beyond its current chart placing — number 25. That being the case, it will be their smallest hit since 'Backchat' in 1982.

'Scandal' is the fourth hit lifted from Queen's latest album 'The Miracle', which has already sold over 450,000 copies — but over-exploitation alone does not explain its poor showing: Three previous Queen albums have each spawned four hits — 'The Game', 'The Works' and 'A Kind Of Magic' — but in each case the fourth single fared better than 'Scandal'.

'Take Care Of Yourself' is Level 42's 23rd hit, all in the Eighties and all on the Polydor label. No other act has had as many hits for the label, which was founded in the Sixties by bandleader Bert Kaempfert.

That's a lot of hits — but let's hear it for Status Quo, who this week became the first group ever to have 40 hits, reaching the target with their single 'Not At All'.

'Eye Know' by De La Soul climbs eight notches to number 16 this week, simultaneously eclipsing the peak chart positions of their two previous hits — 'Me, Myself And I', which reached number 23, and 'Say No Go', a number 18 success. All three tracks were culled from the rap trio's album 'Three Feet High And Rising', which has quietly accumulated 28 weeks on the chart, never climbing higher than number 27, but selling over 110,000 copies. Should De La Soul elect to pluck a fourth single off their album, they're certainly not short of alternatives. Though only a single album, it comprises of no fewer than 24 tracks varying in duration from 40 seconds to very nearly five minutes.

The highest debuting single of the week is 'All Around The World' by Lisa Stansfield, which enters at number 13, thus equalling the peak position of Lisa's debut solo hit 'This Is The Right Time'. Lisa, of course, also fronted Cold Cut's number 11 hit 'People Hold On'.

Those who suggest that she is better as a soloist than with Blue Zone (the trio she recorded a number of unsuccessful singles with before Cold Cut allowed her to share their limelight) should note that both of her solo hits were co-written by Lisa with Andy Morris and Ian Devaney — her colleagues in Blue Zone.

Both of Lisa's singles and a further eight Stansfield/Morris/Devaney compositions are included on her stunning debut solo album 'Affection'. Due for release on 13 November, it's a classy and soulful selection, bristling with strong songs destined to make Lisa a star.

German group Oh Well's eponymous hit climbs to number 28 this week, exactly 20 years after Fleetwood Mac's original recording of the song peaked at number two.

Oh Well are something of a mystery group, but one thing is clear — some associated with them is a Frank Zappa fan of long-standing. Their version of 'Oh Well' incorporates sam from 'The Other People' a Zappa track from the 1968 album 'We're Only In It For The Money', and 'Sofa No. 2' is from 'One Size Fits All', released seven years later.

A few weeks ago, Marillion released 'Hooked On You', their first single following the departure from the group Fish, their erstwhile lead vocalist. It debuted at number 32, and reached number 30 before starting its descent. It was their least successful single since 'Market Square Heroes' in 1983. It was reasonable to assume therefore that the fans' allegiance was to Fish, and not the group itself. Well, maybe — but this is Fish's debut solo single 'State Of Mind' debuts at number 32.

Jive Bunny's 'That's What I Like' number one again, but with a reduced lead over the new number two, 'Girl Gonna Miss You', which is now the bi of Milli Vanilli's four hits.
