CHARTFILE

BY ALAN JONES

● Jive Bunny And The Mastermixers fourth single, 'That Sounds Good To Me', dips to number nine this week, as the nation's bookmakers breathe a collective sigh of relief that it failed to emulate the chart-topping exploits of their first three. Had 'That Sounds Good To Me' reached number one, they would have been not only the first act ever to top the charts with their first four singles, but also the first act to have four consecutive number ones at any stage of their career since T. Rex, completed the feat in 1972.

● The Stone Roses register their fifth top 50 hit of the year as 'She Bangs The Drum All Day' re-enters the chart at number 34, two notches higher than its August 1989 peak. All five hits, with the exception of 'Fools Gold', are re-issues.

They have a brand new single provisionally scheduled for release in April, when, presumably, they will equal the best 1989 tally of six top 50 hits, scored by Bobby Brown.

● Have SAW lost their touch? I doubt it, but Big Fun's 'Handful Of Promises' is their second creation in a row to fall short of the top 20. It dips to number 25 this week, from its peak of number 21, while Japanese protégé Kakko's SAW-helmed single 'We Should Be Dancing' peaked at a miserable 101.

● Canadian vocalist Alannah Myles' raunchy debut single, 'Black Velvet', climbs 15 notches to number 33 in the UK, and retains its place at the top of the US chart, at the expense of Taylor Dayne, whose latest hit 'Love Will Lead You Back' holds at number two.

A typographical error last week rendered incomprehensible my observation that each of Taylor's six hits to date have reached the top 10 in the USA. That's the second best opening sequence of hits ever assembled by a female soloist, being bettered only by Whitney Houston's epoch-making initial burst of 10 top 10 hits in a row, starting with 'You Give Good Love' in 1985, and ending with 'One Moment In Time' three years later.

● THE STONE ROSES

● SINEAD O'CONNOR

NEWS EXTER

SINEAD ADDS MORE DATES

Sinéad O'Connor has added some dates to her tour, playing Nottingham Royal Concert Hall April 17, Hammersmith Odeon April 25 and 26, Glasgow SECC June 19, Edinburgh Playhouse June 20.

JON TO LEAVE?

Rumours are rocking the music business that Jon Bon Jovi is thinking of quitting Bon Jovi and going solo. He's considering film offers and some sources close to Jon say he feels that Bon Jovi have achieved all they can. However, a spokesperson for Bon Jovi's record company says that he's happy with the group.

ROWLAND IN COURT

Kevin Rowland is due to appear at Marlborough Street Magistrates Court in London on April 18, charged with not paying his bill for breakfast at a West End club.
