CHART FOCUS

Despite the high debut of the KLF's Last Train To Trancentral, Cher's update of The Shoop Shoop Song (It's In His Kiss) is likely to stay at the summit for some time: its sales last week were more than double that of the outgoing number one by Chesney Hawkes. Though the single is not featured on Cher's album, Heart Of Stone, which was released nearly two years ago, the album re-enters the chart this week at number 72.

Currently in the American Top 10 with Touch Me (All Night Long), 21-year-old Cathy Dennis from Norwich looks set for similar success here. Touch Me vaults from number 159 to number 25 here this week. The song was originally recorded by American singer Fonda Blue in 1984, but failed to chart on either side of the Atlantic. Cathy's Touch Me is similar to Fonda's, as Cathy cops a writing credit on her version, presumably for additional lyrics. Another good week for veteran composer John Barry. Born in York, and domiciled in New York, Barry has written numerous hit singles over the years — for artists as diverse as Shirley Bassey, Duran Duran, A-Ha and Donna Summer — but perhaps his most famous composition, Born Free, was never a chart hit, even though it won an Oscar in 1966. Of the numerous recordings of the song, one of the least accomplished is that of Vic Reeves and the Roman Numerals, yet the Channel Four comedian's recording climbs to number six on the singles chart this week. Meanwhile, 58-year-old Barry's acclaimed soundtrack for the movie Dances With Wolves continues its album chart residency.

Which group from the North West with its own record label has recorded songs entitled All Together Now and Don't Let Me Down? Until recently, only the Beatles fitted the bill, but now the Farm do too. Neither their latest hit, the aforementioned Don't Let Me Down, or All Together Now has anything to do with the Fab Four's songs.

Another indie band with its own label, the Inspirational Carpets' latest Cow Records album release, The Beast Inside, debuts at number five. Their Life album reached number two last year.

ANALYSIS

Record companies are finding that love conquers all when it comes to the compilations charts.

Analysis of album sales for the first quarter of 1991 shows how themed titles took pole position in the compilations chart accounting for around 8% of all Top 500 sales; or around 700,000 units.

This is in marked contrast to the usage of the compilations market, which tends to be dominated by the high profile current hits titles, such as the outstandingly successful Now series or EMI's harder-edged indie dance brand, Awesome.

While Awesome and Telstar's Righteous Brothers inspired Unchained Melodies were the top individual titles for the quarter, the hits genre is broken into third place by marketing, particularly when it is tied in with a sell through video release.

Compilations specialist Neil Palmer, creative director of Telstar, says the beauty of compilations is that they

"Compilations offer easy, quick access to music," he says. "They make people aware that they can get a lot of pleasure out of music."

The success of dance compilations in recent years is now provoking record companies to seek out other genres to exploit. Graham Walker of music industry research specialist ERA says the relatively undeveloped AOR/soft rock market
