CHART FOCUS

Cash registers were ringing merrily all last week, with unit sales of albums up 20% over the same week in 1990. Much of the increase was due to the simultaneous release of Use Your Illusion I and II, the two new albums by Guns N' Roses.

The albums sensationally debut at number one and two in the album chart, after selling a combined total of nearly 300,000 units last week, representing an income of well over £3m for record sales.

For an act to debut at number one and number two in the album chart at the same time is unprecedented. The Beatles' compilations of 1967-1970 and 1962-1966 came close, debuting at two and three respectively in 1973. The two Guns N' Roses albums ran neck-and-neck at the top of the chart for most of the week, but Use Your Illusion II eventually opened up a 4% advantage over Use Your Illusion I — presumably because the former contains the group's recent hit You Could Be Mine. Their current single Don't Cry appears in different versions on both albums. Not surprisingly, the single — which entered the chart at number eight last week — dips sharply to number 17.

Another bumper week is in prospect this week, with the new Bryan Adams album likely to turn in massive sales. It will be interesting to see if its release significantly reduces sales of his two current singles Can't Stop This Thing We Started, which moves from number 18 to number 12, and (Everything I Do) I Do It For You, which continues at number one for the 12th week in a row — a new record.

Ironically, it looks more likely that Can't Stop This Thing We Started will go into decline than I Do It For You. The former title has already slowed significantly, while I Do It For You still holds a better than five to three lead over its nearest competitors, these being Salt-N-Pepa's Let's Talk About Sex and Oceanic's Insanity. Neither appears strong enough to overtake Adams, particularly as they are not featured on Top Of The Pops this week.

The record now looking most likely to succeed Adams' single at number one is another rock ballad — Scorpions' Wind Of Change, which is the week's highest debutant at number 19. A massive smash all around the globe, it originally peaked here at number 53 in June.

ANALYSIS

No-one seems more surprised at Bryan Adams' record-breaking success with (Everything I Do) I Do It For You than his label A&M. While A&M recognised that the song would be a chart success, it could not have imagined that it would stay at the top for at least 12 consecutive weeks — beating the 11 week record held by Whitney Houston. It caught us completely by surprise. I couldn't tell you exactly why it has done so well but simply struck the hearts of the public," says A&M marketing director Jason Guy. He certainly can't credit the success to any grand marketing campaign. "It really sold itself but it was to play that really did the trick," he says.

as his record of the week and Capital also gave it strong support. "I think we got airplay more or less upfront and it's been consistent ever since," says Guy.

But Guy is still amazed that the single is still selling well. "It's become like a coronation mug — people are now buying it because it's become such a special single," he says.
