CHART FOCUS

Mike Oldfield completes a stunning return this week, as Tubular Bells II debuts at number one. The album, Oldfield's first for WEA, comes 18 months after he completed his previous contract for Virgin with the album Heaven's Open, which peaked at 81.

Oldfield's original Tubular Bells album was Virgin's first number one album. Released in 1973, it remains its biggest seller. It took rather longer than Tubular Bells II to reach the top — fifteen months — but when it did, it did so in spectacular fashion deposing Hergest Ridge, Oldfield's follow-up. Tubular Bells is one of the most successful albums of all time, spending 264 weeks on the chart. But even though it has sold at a steady rate ever since, its last appearance in the chart was just a week short of nine years ago. However, the interest in Oldfield precipitated by the new album is such that Tubular Bells returns to the chart at number 52.

In America, L.A. and BabyFace become the first songwriters/producers to be credited for all of the country's top singles since 25 March 1978, when Barry Gibb was partly or wholly responsible for carrying out the same duties on the Bee Gees' Night Fever and Stayin' Alive and Samantha Sang's Emotion. L.A. and BabyFace's hat-trick comprises Boyz II Men's End Of The Road — number one for a fifth week — TLC's Baby-Baby-Baby, which holds at number two, and Bobby Brown's Humpin'

Around. None of the records is nearly so successful in Britain: End Of The Road climbs five places to number 31, but Humpin' Around peaked at number 19 a fortnight ago, and Baby-Baby-Baby proved to be a less than glorious successor to TLC's major hit Ain't To Proud To Beg. It falls out of the chart this week, after reaching number 55.

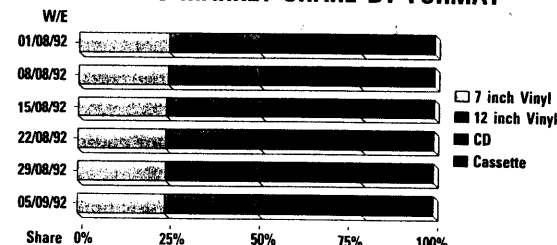

Meanwhile, at the sharp end of the chart, Snap's Rhythm Is A Dancer continues to dominate, though word has it that the Shamen's Ebenezzer Goode was the best-selling record over the weekend, and is likely to move into pole position next week. The highest new entry — at number 14 — is Jam. The fifth single from Michael Jackson's Dangerous album, it's likely to emulate the others by advancing into the Top 10, with much TV exposure and the belated release of its 7-inch format this week.

CHART NEWCOMERS

30 SONIA: Boogie Nights (Arista). The 11th consecutive hit for the chirpy Liverpoolian, who has a further two singles scheduled between now and next spring, when she will be representing the UK at the Eurovision Song Contest. All four (Boogie Nights, two others and her Eurovision song) will appear on her subsequent album, from which Arista sources confidently predict a minimum of seven hits. Several producers have been commissioned to provide the hits, among them Nigel Wright, Ian Levine and KWS.

— sold a staggering 80,000 copies. The quiet young man from Donegal was involved in much controversy when his albums were excluded for a time from the CIN country chart, but they were subsequently rehabilitated. There are four in the current Top 20.

38 DANIEL O'DONNELL: I Just Want To Dance With You. Ritz. Ritz registers its first hit single in over six years, as 31-year-old Irishman O'Donnell scores with a song by fellow countrywoman Mary Black. O'Donnell's singles success follows the release of eight albums, five of which made the chart, and four videos, of which the most successful — Live In Concert

54 ROLLINS BAND: Tearing (Imago). Band leader Henry Rollins was born in the same year (1961) as Daniel O'Donnell, equals O'Donnell's heavy touring schedule of 20 weeks a year and makes his singles chart debut the same week — but the two are poles apart musically. Rollins, from Washington DC, was formerly with the notorious Black Flag, a second generation punk band, and the Rollins Band are only slightly tamer, while Rollins' philosophy is somewhat controversial. Rollins comments: "Either I write and play in the band, or I do bad things."

55 FAITH NO MORE: A Small Victory (Remix)

67 (Slash/London). No, your eyes do not deceive you, A Small Victory does indeed appear twice in this week's singles chart. The clue as to why can be gleaned from the dance chart, where the band makes its unexpected debut with the Youth remixes of A Small Victory. The Sundown Mix is the one that club DJs are playing and dance fans are buying. The original single reached number 29 in the Top 75 three weeks ago.
