CHART FOCUS

The Shamen's Ebenezer Goode increases its sales at the top of the singles chart again this week, and should prove strong enough to hold off the challenge of Dr Alban. The group's Boss Drum album debuts at number three. They might have preferred it to debut at number one, but the performance of Boss Drum must be cause for quiet satisfaction for both the group and their label, One Little Indian, as it gives each of them their first Top 10 album more than five years after their debuts: The Shamen's first ever album, Drop, was released on the Moksha label in June 1987, two months before One Little Indian released its introductory LP with A Flux Of Pink Indians' Uncarved Block. Neither came near to charting. Hitherto, the only Michael Jackson album to spawn a string of five consecutive Top 10 singles was Thriller. Dangerous produced four in a row, but valiantly fails in its quest to match Thriller this week as Jam tumbles ten places from its peak of number 13. Jam was also a disappointment in America, where its number 26 peak made it the first single by Jackson to fall short of the Top 15 in 13 years, and his smallest hit since You Can't Win peaked at number 81 in 1979.

Meanwhile, Snap's Rhythm Is A Dancer single dips just one notch to number four on its thirteenth week in the chart. Unusually for a record still so high, that's a longer chart career than that enjoyed by any other record anywhere else in this week's Top 75. Furthermore, the single has overhauled Shakespears Sister's Stay to become the biggest-selling hit of 1992. At its current slow rate of descent it looks likely to sell a fair few more before it disappears altogether.

Another of the year's biggest hits is Billy Ray Cyrus's Achy Breaky Heart, but after an initially very slow descent this is plummeting. Last week it dropped from number five to number 15, and this week it hurtles down to number 49. Possible reason? PolyGram has deleted it, wishing punters either to buy Cyrus' album, or his new single Could've Been Me, where they will find it in a live version.

Finally, if you've been trying to remember exactly why Thomas Dolby's Silk Pyjamas sounds vaguely familiar, try playing Adam & The Ants' Prince Charming, and all will become clear.

CHART NEWCOMERS

15 PEARL JAM: Jeremy. Epic. Back in the harrowing world of child abuse explored by songs like Luke, the artwork for Pearl Jam's latest uses stills from the song's video. The song's lyrics were written by vocalist Eddie Vedder, while bassist Jeff Ament was responsible for the music. This is the third hit from the group's album Ten.

17 SUEDE: Metal Mickey. Nude. Despite acres of pop press, Suede's first single The Drowners/To The Birds flattered to deceive when it was released in May, debuting at number 49 but climbing no higher. But their stock has risen since, and their highly commercial new single — celebrating the robotic star of the eponymous Seventies TV series — is an instant smash.

Top 40 hit, reaching number 39 with Elevate Your Mind, 35 places higher than its UK peak. This time around they are singing rather more than rapping, with help from additional vocalists Cath Coffey, Andrea Groves, Verona Davis and Jennifer Ismail. The song is based on Jimmy 'Bo' Horne's 1978 recording Let Me (Let Me Be Your Lover). Connected is the introductory single from their new album (also entitled Connected), scheduled for release on October 5.

26 STEREO MCs: Connected. 4th & B'way. The Stereo MCs made history a little over a year ago, when they became the first British rap group to have a US

45 IZZY STRADLIN: Pressure Drop.

Geffen: Numerous pop and rock nuggets have been turned into reggae hits, but far fewer reggae songs have moved successfully in the opposite direction. Here's one that has. Originally recorded by Toots & The Maytals, and subsequently covered by the Clash, it now provides the first solo hit for erstwhile Guns N' Roses guitarist Izzy Stradlin. Stradlin turned down the chance of working with the Black Crowes to pursue a solo career. His debut album Ju Ju Hounds is due in October.

50 MAXI PRIEST: Groovin' In The Midnight. Ten. With a dozen hits under his belt since 1986, Maxi Priest is one of the more regular and soulful exponents of reggae to chart. He's also had more hits for Ten than any other artist. His latest is the first single from his upcoming album Fe Real. London-born Maxi has recently completed his first acting role, as a cab driver in forthcoming film Scam. Alan Jones
