CHART FOCUS

Sales took a post-Easter dive last week, with albums particularly depressed as few important new releases arrived in-store with the exception of the Springsteen album which debuts at number four. The upshot of it all is that despite a gain of only about 10% over the previous week, REM's Automatic For The People dramatically climbs from number seven to regain the number one slot it held when first released 29 weeks ago.

The album, which is nearing triple platinum, has spun-off four big hit singles; Drive (number 11), Man On The Moon (number 18), The Sidewinder Sleeps Tonite (number 17) and the current 45, Everybody Hurts, which climbs to number 15 this week. The group has also amassed no fewer than 10 Top 40 hits in the past two years, thanks to its current label Warner Brothers and its former affiliation IRS. Only The Wedding Present have had more chart hits in that period.

Meanwhile, the singles chart title remains in the hands of the Bluebells for the fourth week, though their sales are falling faster than any other act in the Top 10. Even so, they're likely to hang on to the title for at least another week, as the only records in the Top 10 to actually increase their sales last week were those by New Order and Capella, neither of which are immediately threatening to the Bluebells.

Arista continues to show its singles chart muscle, increasing its current tally of Top 75 hits to 10 (including two Logic/Arista hits). The jewel in Arista's crown this week is Whitney Houston's I Have Nothing, which debuts at number nine.

The singles chart technically includes a spoken word hit this week. Chart regulations require that "sales of different formats and variants of a single are combined... where each format contains the featured track." The 12 different versions of Gimme Shelter which span a cassette, a 12-incher and two CDs, and together make up this week's number 23 singles are included together for chart purposes because their featured track (and, therefore, technically the hit) is the Gimme Shelter Interview, where some of the artists talk about the cause.

Due to incorrect information being supplied by Era, last week's independent singles chart was distorted by the inclusion of Heaven 17's Penthouse And Pavement, a Virgin release.
