CHART FOCUS

George Michael and Queen continue at the top of the singles chart, but are more or less certain to be overtaken next week by English group Ace Of Base, whose All That She Wants records a massive increase in sales, as it surges to number two. All of which is bad news for Janet Jackson, whose That's The Way Love Goes hit is pushed back to number three, when it had seemed likely it would become her first number one. In America, it moves into pole position this week, to become her sixth chart-topper.

In a fairly quiet week for the singles chart, the highest new entry comes from Dina Carroll's Express, at number 20. Though a low position in which to find the week's highest new entry, it is a very creditable performance from Dina, as it's the fifth single to be pulled from her album So Close. The others were Ain't No Man, which peaked at number 16, Special Kind Of Love (16), So Close (20) and This Time (23).

To counter-balance the comparative calm of the singles chart, the album chart is showing some healthy action this week, with three newcomers among the top five; Clannad equal their previous best, by debuting at number five with Banba; Terence Trent D'Arby stages a career recovery with Symphony Or Damn debutting at number four after the disastrous Neither Fish Nor Flesh, which debuted at number 12 but spiralled out of sight in little more than a month; and New Order enter the chart at number one with Republic, their first album.

since 1989's Technique, also a number one.

At a time when the record industry is under pressure for its pricing, it's interesting to note that the Dogs D'Amour album ...More Uncharted Heights Of Disgrace, which debuts at number 30, is selling largely (58%) in an edition which includes both a CD and video. It's the first time, a CD and video package has been allowed under chart regulations. Its dealer price is a mere 50p higher than the CD only edition of the album, and its success is sure to spawn a series of imitators, forcing record companies to spend more money on breaking albums.

When record and video packages were briefly allowed to contribute towards chart positions a decade ago, the only notable success at that time, when videos were a great deal more expensive than they are now, was Annabel Lamb's Riders On The Storm, which reached number 27 in the singles chart.
