CHART FOCUS

Another lethargic Top 10 singles chart again this week, (a feature of recent charts), with Take That comfortably retaining the number one position they grabbed a week ago, when they became the first RCA act to have a single debut at number one since Elvis Presley placed It's Now Or Never at the top of the stack in 1960.

The most impressive performance of the week belongs to Roxette, whose 12th hit Almost Unreal debuts at number seven. Taken from the soundtrack to the movie Super Mario Brothers, it far surpasses Roxette's previous highest entry. Almost Unreal is one of a trio of movie songs in the top tier, along with UB40's (I Can't Help) Falling In Love With You (number 10) and Michael Jackson's Will You Be There (number nine), which are featured in Sliver and Free Willy respectively. Sadly, the hottest movie in town, Jurassic Park, probably won't spin-off a hit, as its soundtrack consists entirely of John Williams' incidental music.

Another former movie favourite, You're The One That I Want, which was a number one for John Travolta and Olivia Newton John for nine weeks when Grease was all the rage in 1978, re-appears in the chart this week in its new version by Debbie Gibson and Craig McLachlan, who take on the Newton-John and Travolta roles in the West End stage version of the musical. It debuts at number 14 giving McLachlan his biggest hit since he reached number two with Mona in 1990, and Gibson her biggest hit since 1989, when Foolish Beat peaked at number nine.

Meanwhile, at the top of this week's album chart, UB40 dethrone U2. According to reports, it was a close contest. UB40 have had only one previous number one album from 13 attempts, topping the list with 1983's Labour Of Love.

Apart from UB40 and U2, most of the big selling albums in Britain at present are compilations. According to record company sources, U2's Zooropa was the best selling album by a large margin last week, but sandwiched between it and Jamiroquai's Emergency On Planet Earth were no fewer than six various artist compilations all consisting wholly of dance tracks.

Alan Jones.

Due to an error at chart information supplier Era, last week's Top 75 singles chart carried incorrect information in the "last week's position" column. MW apologises for any inconvenience.
