● Meat Loaf returns to album peak ● Teen idols in singles chart battle

CHART FOCUS

Meat Loaf himself has admitted "It's not really a sequel. It just has that name; it's a good marketing tool", but Bat Out Of Hell II - Back Into Hell is certainly creating more of a stir than any of Meat's albums since the original Bat Out Of Hell. This week, it returns to the top of the album chart, with a third week of high sales taking its cumulative tally to more than 200,000. The release this week of the single I'll Do Anything For Love (But I Won't Do That) is likely to help the album maintain a high profile for the foreseeable future.

The singles chart admits 21 new entries this week, with Frankie Goes To Hollywood's remixed Relax making the highest debut at number six. When first released nearly 10 years ago, it made a more modest start, debuting at number 35, though it accelerated rapidly and eventually spent five weeks at number one.

Though both will be swamped next week by Take That, there's an interesting battle for supremacy between Bad Boys Inc and fellow teen idols Worlds Apart. The latter group's debut single, a cover of Heaven Must Be Missing An Angel, peaked at number 29, but they seemed to blow it when the self-penned Wonderful World peaked at 51. Selecting the over-used Everlasting Love as their third single seemed risky, but it climbs to number 20 this week, and is showing surprising strength considering it

When they were first released in 1973, the Beatles 1962-1966 and 1967-1970 albums were immediately hugely successful. The 1967-1970 album peaked at number two, while 1962-1966 reached number three. Issued on CD for the first time last week, they now return to the chart, and this time it's the 1962-1966 package that has the upper hand, equalling its number three peak, while 1967-1970 debuts at number four - a creditable performance in view of the criticism of their high price tag (over £20), which seems particularly steep on the 1962-1966 compilation which has a shorter playing time (62 minutes) than many single CD releases.

has had very little TV exposure or Radio One play. Meanwhile, Bad Boys Inc, who reached number 19 with their debut Don't Talk About

Love and seemed to be getting the upper hand, debut at number 26 this week with Whenever You Need Someone.

The Bad Boys Inc record helps to make it a great week in a bad year for the Nightcrawlers. A British band formerly signed to Island's 4th & Broadway imprint, the Nightcrawlers were dropped earlier this year. Hitless and without a contract, they soldiered on, and this week they score an estimable double. As writers, they are responsible for the Bad Boys Inc hit, while in America one of their 4th & Broadway flops, Push This Feeling On, finally enters the Hot 100 after serving a long apprenticeship in the clubs.

Proving what an evergreen it is, the Smokey Robinson composition Tracks Of My Tears returns to the chart this week in a version by Go West. It has now been a hit in four different decades - in the Sixties for Smokey's group the Miracles, in the Seventies for Linda Ronstadt and in the Eighties for Colin Blunstone. While this and Everlasting Love (currently a hit for the fifth time) are examples of well-known US songs that pay regular dividends and are obvious choices for those looking for songs to cover, much more credit reflects on those who revive obscure songs and turn them into hits - such as Chaka Demus & Pliers, whose current hit is a cover of a Curtis Mayfield flop, Bitty MacLean (Fats Domino did It Keeps Raining first), Eternal (Glenn Jones's Stay) and Take That/Lulu (Dan Hartman's Relight My Fire). Alan Jones.
