CHARTS AND PRODUCT NEWS
week ending
26 FEBRUARY 1994

● Mariah Carey in singles & albums double ● Stereos reap Brits reward

CHART FOCUS

Mariah Carey's Without You single more than doubles its sales this week and is now so far ahead of all other singles that it seems unlikely to be seriously challenged for three weeks, possibly more. The popularity of Mariah's recording, despite constant sniping from the likes of Nicky Campbell and Jonathan King, also brings about a major resurgence of her Music Box album, which slips into pole position on the album chart for the second time, having debuted at number one September.

The effect of the Brits and the school half-term explains much else that happens in the chart this week, with the biggest Brits beneficiaries perhaps being the Stereo MCs, whose Connected album soars from number 86 to number 13, and Bjork, whose Debut album rebounds to number three, equalling its previous best showing, which it achieved on its first week in the chart last July. It has been a model of consistency ever since, remaining in the Top 30 for all but one week, that being when its stocks were allowed to become depleted ahead of its re-promotion with an additional track. Meat Loaf's performance of I Do Anything For Love (But I Won't Do That) was another particularly well-received Brits highlight, sending the single back into the chart at number 82 and hoisting its parent album Bat Out Of Hell II from number 13 to number 5.

Meanwhile, Top Of The Pops is

While Elastica, the latest Next Big Thing to be nurtured by the inbies, slip to number 66 with Line Up, the last-but-one critical darlings, Suede, make a massive first week impression on the chart with their fifth single, Stay Together. Debuting at number three, it easily out-performs the group's other singles: The Drowners peaked at 49, Metal Mickey at 17, Animal Nitrate at 7 and So Young at 22. It thus checks the decline that seemed to have set in with So Young, and has a beneficial side effect on the group's only album - on which Stay Together does not feature - which surges from number 60 to 37.

having a less predictable effect on records than ever. The Flavour's No Matter What U Do (I'm Gonna Get With U) has failed to chart despite being used as the playout record three weeks ago, and there are only minor dividends this week for Sinead O'Connor whose sterling performance helped her single You Made Me The Thief Of Your Heart stand still at number 42 after a mid-week dip, and Freakpower, whose Rush single checks in at number 62 after being used as the playout disc. It seems unlikely to equal the Top 40 showing of their previous single. But Dina Carroll, who performed a track from her album So Close for no reason other than it had sold a million copies, was rewarded by the album surging from number 14 to number four.

With 13 more records making their Top 40 singles debut this week, there's little room for records already there to show growth. In fact, just three records make an upwards move within the Top 40 this week, but that's a significant improvement on the previous week's tally of one. The industry seems to be agreed that there needs to be some sort of brake on the chart which allows records to become more familiar over a period of weeks and grow the way they do in America, but the chart continues to move at breakneck speed. Adding an airplay element would certainly slow things down, as would, in a different way, splitting the sales week so that it runs from Wednesday to Tuesday. That's impractical for the CIN chart, of course, where user requirements are for a Sunday chart, but if major record companies were to move releases to, say, Friday, they could achieve a similar effect. At this stage of the game, anything is worth a try.
