Wets make Scots history ● Seal steals album crown for second time

CHART FOCUS

Wet Wet Wet become the first Scots band ever to have three number one singles in the UK this week, as their cover of the Trogs' 1967 hit Love Is All Around topples Manchester United's Come On You Reds.

The Wets first topped the chart in 1988 with a version of the Beatles' With A Little Help From My Friends, and returned to the summit in 1992 with Goodnight Girl.

The Wet Wet Wet single is one of several in the current chart that have been released in two CD versions. The Wets, Tori Amos and Bad Boys Inc attain higher chart placings as a result of issuing two CDs on which the only common cut is the title track, and even that is often in a different version. Tori Amos, for instance, has a studio version of Past The Mission on one CD single, and a live version on the other.

What is baffling is why a company like Sony, which has stated its commitment to reducing the number of singles formats to three, and indicated it wasn't going to do deals to make singles available at retail for prices lower than national dealer price, has issued the current Alison Moyet single on two CDs. Both are widely available at £1.99 with identical track listings.

The only difference between the discs is they have different picture sleeves. One is in a jewel case while the other is in a digipack sleeve. Whatever the reason for this, it hasn't worked and Alison's Getting

It's three years to the week since Seal's self-titled debut album entered the chart at number one, and this week his second album, also modestly entitled Seal does likewise, even though its introductory single Prayer For The Dying pulled up short of the Top 10. By choosing to give two albums the same name Seal is in good company. Diana Ross issued two albums called Diana and three entitled Diane Ross, while Peter Gabriel's first four albums after leaving Genesis were also self-titled or untitled.

Into Something has slumped from its lowly debut position of 51 to 74.

Whilst on the subject of prices, it's interesting to note that Prince's The Beautiful Experience was on sale last week at prices ranging from £9.99 to a one-week only £4.99 at Our Price. The national dealer price for The Beautiful Experience is £5.99 plus VAT. Regardless of its price, the Prince disc's playing time and the fact it contains versions of only one track qualifies it as a single, hence it debuts at number 17 this week. Even so, the rules seems to be a little fluid in this area, as Jean Michel Jarre's Chronologie 6, which has a playing time four seconds inside the 40 minute limit for singles, and a similar dealer price to the Prince disc, was allowed to compete in the album chart last week.

Meanwhile, record companies used to go to great lengths to avoid having identically named but different songs around at the same time, but no more it seems. How else do you explain the recent outbreak of duplications?

In recent weeks we've had simultaneous Top 20 hits entitled I Believe by Marcella Detroit and Sounds of Blackness while a Bon Jovi hit of the same name was a recent memory. A fortnight ago there were two songs called The Real Thing in the Top 10 (2 Unlimited and Tony Di Bart), as well as another song of that name (at number 92) by The Dreaming and Elton & Marcella's Ain't Nothing Like The Real Thing.

At present, there are five songs in contention called Good Time or Good Times, and only four weeks after Bob Geldof charted with a song called Crazy, Julio Iglesias follows. Another Crazy, by Aerosmith, is due for release shortly, alongside Crazy Man by Blast.
