THE OFFICIAL UK CHARTS

CHART FOCUS

After twice turning a midweek singles chart deficit into a victory, Mark Morrison finally meets his match this week. Having sold 500,000 copies of his Return Of The Mack single in eight weeks, Morrison steps aside for George Michael to gather his second consecutive number one hit since joining Virgin. FastLove is George's 11th number one in all, a tally exceeded only by the Beatles, Elvis Presley and Cliff Richard.

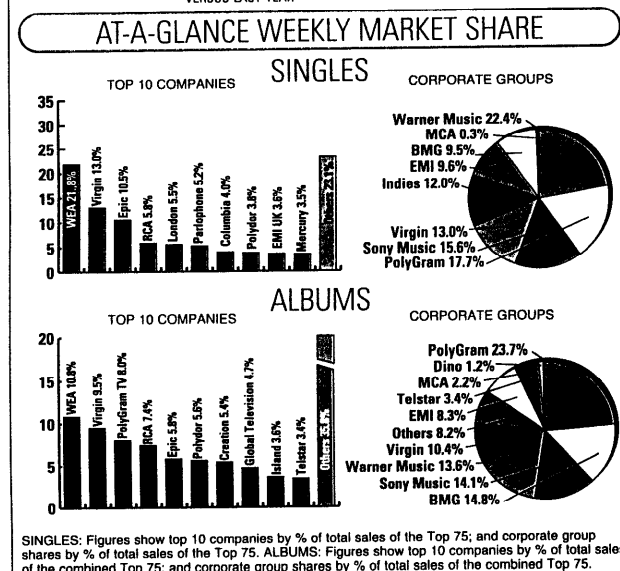

Meanwhile, an act that made its chart debut in 1976, and has since completely changed its personnel having recruited hundreds of members in the interim, storms back into the charts with its seventh hit at number 8. It is Manchester United Football Club, whose Move Move Move (The Red Tribe) gives the Music Collection label its first hit. It's the third hit in three years for the club which tops the table, not only of the Carling Premiership but also in the ladder of hitmaking football teams, with two hits more than their nearest rivals, these being the England, Scotland and Spurs teams. United's FA Cup Final opponents Liverpool should join this select group next week.

Although the England World squad were the first team to chart in 1970, the first club side to score a hit were Arsenal, who reached number 14 with Good Old Arsenal - to the tune of Rule Britannia, with lyrics by Jimmy Hill - 25 years ago this week. Since then 14 different club sides have charted a total of 33 hits.

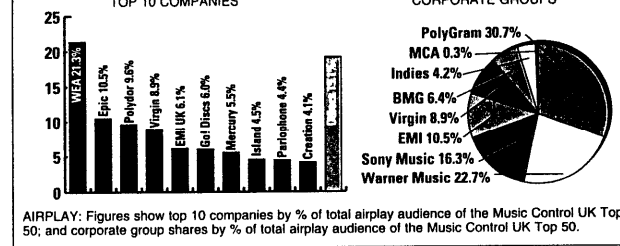

Only three months after Diana Ross reached number 14 with her remake of Gloria Gaynor's 1979 chart topper I Will Survive, Chantay Savage's version of the song debuts at number 12. That the previously unknown Ms. Savage could better the veteran Ms. Ross's chart placing with the song is a clear indication that she is reaching music lovers, while Diana's single appealed only to her fans.

On the album chart, Take That are replaced at the top by Alanis Morissette's Jagged Little Pill. Morissette's album has spun off four hits, sold more than 600,000 copies, and tops the chart in its 40th week in the chart. For an album to take so long to reach the summit is rare, though both Fleetwood Mac and Mike Oldfield have had albums top the chart after longer gestations. Morissette's album can't complete the transatlantic double though, as it slips to number two in America, overpowered by Rage Against The Machine's Evil Empire.

In the US, Mariah Carey's remarkable run of success continues. Her single Always Be My Baby climbs to the top of the Hot 100 this week, overcoming six week champion Celine

Dion's Because You Loved Me. Carey has now had eleven number ones in America, and 53 weeks at the summit. Her last single, One Sweet Day, on which she was accompanied by Boyz II Men, contributed considerably to the latter achievement, spending 16 weeks in pole position. Mariah now ties Madonna and Whitney Houston as the solo female artist with most number ones, though only Madonna has done it with wholly solo singles.

It seems unlikely that Madonna will be re-taking the initiative in the near future. Her Love Don't Live Here Anymore single has crawled 91-87-79 over the past three weeks despite containing some critically lauded new mixes of the song.

Finally, Warner Music's decision to release the first single from the new Hootie & The Blowfish album in the UK on the same day as the album itself has produced mixed results. The album, Fairweather Johnson, debuts at nine while the single Old Man & Me (When I Get To Heaven) is less enthusiastically received, debuting at 57. The group's previous album Cracked Rear View reached number 12 in the UK last year - not bad, but not a patch on its success in America, where it topped the chart, and has so far sold more than 13m copies. Alan Jones.

No longer the most-played record in Britain, but still commanding the largest audience, Gabrielle's Give Me A Little More Time tops the airplay chart for the fifth week, defying the aspirations of the sales chart's two top discs, George Michael's FastLove and Mark Morrison's Return Of The Mack.

For George at least, the problem is simply that the record hasn't matured yet. The average hit record shows growth for 6-7 weeks before beginning to fade from the radio waves. The same record is generally in sales decline after its first week in the shops, so a number one airplay hit is still a distinct possibility. What is certainly true is that Gabrielle, Morrison and Michael's current hits are being played far more than any other records, with the gap between them and the next most played disc at upwards of 500 plays.

With more than a thousand plays in each of the past eight weeks and a total of 14 weeks in the chart, Gabrielle's is already one of the longest lingering hits of the year but has yet to reach even half of the impressive airplay chart record of 30 weeks established this week by Everything But The Girl's Missing. As Walking Wounded continues to climb the chart, Missing should be fading away but is actually holding its own. It's interesting to note that Missing is still in the US Top 75 airplay chart after an identical number of weeks. However its lengthy tenure there is exceeded by two other records with the Gin Blossoms' 40-week Til I Hear It From You setting the pace.

The impressive sales chart debut of Chantay Savage's I Will Survive is all the more impressive as it has achieved the feat with virtually no airplay support. Ranked 125th last week, the record slips still further, though an even bigger hit with even less airplay is the Manchester United Move Move Move (The Red Tribe).

Radio One's continuing love affair with 2 Pac's California Love, which it has played 90 times in three weeks, remains central to the record's climb to the verge of the Top 10. With Radio One stripped out of the chart, the track is just outside the Top 100. Sleeper's Sale Of The Century and The Cure's The 13th are even more reliant on the goodwill of the pop network and the fact that these records are big sales hits suggests Radio One is getting it right.

Finally, Alanis Morissette has had higher chart positions with her first four singles at radio than at retail. Ironic is her best performance on both. Debuting at number 11 on sales a fortnight ago, it has since slipped, but it is still building nicely at radio. At seven last week, it climbs one place to number six. Alan Jones.
