CHART FOCUS

The Fugees' Killing Me Softly continues to achieve heady sales. Its fourth week in the shops saw an 18% erosion in support, but with a further 160,000 sales continues to lead by a massive margin, although the continued success of the England football team in Euro 96 has given the former chart-topper Three Lions a huge boost. Sales of the Baddiel & Skinner & Lightning Seeds disc made an impressive 69% week-on-week climb last week, lifting the single 4-2, although it still trails the Fugees by a ratio of nearly 2:1. Both records help Sony maintain its impressive feat of having four singles in the top five in a quiet week in which the leading few singles are simply shuffled around.

The England euphoria also helps England's Irie, Black Grape's collaboration with Joe Strummer and Keith Allen, to become the week's highest debuting single at number six, while there are two other newcomers to the Top 10. Everything But The Girl make it three Top 10 hits in a row for the first time in their career, debuting at number eight with Wrong, while Queen register their 46th hit in total and their 24th Top 10 single with Let Me Live. The only group to have more hits is Status Quo, while the only act to have more Top 10 hits is The Beatles.

Previously number one for a fortnight at the beginning of May, Alanis Morissette's Jagged Little Pill returns to the summit, even though its week-on-week sales are down 12%. Morissette takes advantage of a quiet week for new releases and an unusually large 49% decline in sales of fellow Canadian Bryan Adams' 18 'Til I Die, which debuted at number one last week. Morissette's album is a year old in three weeks, and managed to coordinate its climb back to the top with its millionth UK sale.

The lack of new product this week means that Ocean Colour Scene move 6-2 with Mosely Shoals even though its week-on-week sales show a 6% decline.

The dearth of big selling individual artist albums isn't compensated for in the compilation sector either – the top selling multi-artist package, New Hits 96, is only the eighth best seller overall, a very low placing for the top compilation in the combined chart.

Of this week's new albums, the highest debut comes from Dodgy, whose Free Peace Sweet album enters number seven, proving that while they're not yet in the Blur/Oasis/Pulp league, they are making impressive and regular improvements in their album chart form. Their 1993 debut, The Dodgy Album, peaked at number 75, while 1994's Homegrown climbed to number 28. Reunited with producer Tommy LiPuma, who helmed some of his biggest hits, George Benson returns to the album chart at number 61 with That's Right, his first album for jazz label GRP. It's 53 year old Benson's first success with new material since 1989's Tenderly. Benson isn't the only American to have success here with a new album ahead of it charting stateside – R&B singer Toni Braxton's Secrets debuts at number 54. That may sound low compared to the number four peak of her self-titled 1994 album, but Secrets hasn't actually been released here yet, and wins its debut on the strength of import sales alone. Expect to see it make a mighty debut in America next week.

The death of Ella Fitzgerald has had a significant impact on her back catalogue, with massive increases in sales across the entire range, although primarily on the two Verve compilations that brought her back into the charts latterly. 1994's Essential Ella, released earlier this year, returns at number 93. The recordings on the two albums are drawn from Ella's golden period between 1954 and 1963.

Alan Jones

increases both plays and audience for the 12th straight week. Although other records have had a higher audience, the total of 1825 plays attained by Killing Me Softly last week is the highest by any record since Music Control increased its panel of reporting stations at the beginning of the year, and a massive 433 more than any other disc last week.

While the Fugees' success this week was predictable (it has been the number one grower on several occasions in recent weeks) the shock decline of Gary Barlow's debut solo single Forever Love is somewhat unexpected. The single moved 110-24 last week, but now dips to number 37. It's not all bad news – its plays are up from 356 to 490 – but its audience is down 19% as some of the bigger stations are already cutting back their support. Radio One for example gave it only a dozen plays last week, four fewer than the week before, while the record also slipped down the Capital playlist.

The airplay chart, like the sales chart, is strangely becalmed this week with only a handful of newcomers to the Top 50, all but one of which were already in the Top 100. The only genuinely new record to reach the Top 50 this week is New Zealand act OMC's How Bizarre, which debuts at number 41. It does so primarily because of 10 plays from Radio One on high audience shows, these providing some 95% of its total audience.

Atlantic 252 rarely shows significant support for records prior to their release, but is quite smitten by Belinda Carlisle's In Too Deep, which it spun 24 times last week. Its support was instrumental in Carlisle climbing 71-32 nationally with her first single for Chrysalis.

Radio programmers are getting carried away by England's Euro 96 success as much as record buyers, and the Three Lions single by Baddiel & Skinner & Lightning Seeds rebounds 8-3 on airplay, having previously peaked at number five. Gabrielle's former airplay chart topper Give Me A Little More Time has been on the chart longer than any current hit – 22 weeks – but is rapidly losing strength, having moved 14-21-31-39 while her latest offering Forget About The World has climbed 33-23-21-15. The record actually increased its airplay by 50% from 602 plays to 903 with a 32% hike in audience.

Finally apologies to Alanis Morissette, whose Ironic should have been shown as joint number one on Atlantic 252's chart last week, with 50 plays. It somehow disappeared from the printed chart and it's still Atlantic's most-played record.

Alan Jones.
