THE OFFICIAL UK CHARTS

CHART FOCUS

The Prodigy hold at the top of the singles chart with Breathe, which holds off Fugees' No

Woman, No Cry, even though its week-on-week sales have plummeted.

If Fugees can make it to the top, they will become the first act to have three number ones in 1996, having previously reached the summit with Killing Me Softly and Ready Or Not. For a long time, they were 1996's best-selling singles artists, but that's a title they have recently surrendered to the Spice Girls.

The Spice Girls are also making waves with their debut album Spice. Although it remains at number two behind Robson & Jerome's Take Two, Spice has been certified triple platinum in less than three weeks, indicating sales to the trade of more than 900,000 copies. Eternal were the first domestic all-girl group to have a million-selling album: the Spice Girls are racing certainties to become the second, even though retail sales of Spice trail trade sales by a long way, with only about 400,000 copies of the album finding homes yet, the remaining half a million being held in shops in anticipation of the Christmas rush.

Last week, we noted that the jetide explosion in sales was more sluggish than in 1995, with sales down. Last week was much better, however, with the year's highest sale to date - 3,400,000 - trailing the same week last year by less than 3%, the margin narrowing from 8% the week before.

In the US, Christmas albums are big business. In the UK, they join live, foreign language and dance albums in a difficult netherworld. Multi-artist compilations are the exception to this rule.

It's a staggering fact that a trio of new age Christmas albums by Mannheim Steamroller have sold a combined tally of 13m copies in recent years, while artists such as Amy Grant, Alexander O'Neal and Luther Vandross have had million-selling albums of seasonal songs without grazing the UK charts.

Even Mariah Carey and Diana Ross have come a cropper in the UK, peaking at 32 and 37 respectively in 1994 with Christmas collections. It's no surprise then that after a run of five consecutive top five albums, Michael Bolton makes a miserable debut at number 93 with This Is The Time - The Christmas Album.

In the past 20 years, many have tried and all have failed to reach the Top 10 with an album of Christmas songs, with New Kids On The Block coming closest (number 13 in 1990) - until now. Last week, The Smurfs capitalised on their current popularity by climbing to guarantee its survival at the top of the airplay chart, where the new threat to its superiority is Toni Braxton's Unbreak My Heart. Braxton moves 3-2 this week after seven weeks on the chart, increasing its monitored plays slowly but continuously during that period, a process helped by the fact that it has held a top five sales berth (4-5-5-4-5) throughout its five-week retail career. It looks likely to be the one to beat next week.

Adip in support for the East 17/Gabrielle collaboration If You Ever is small enough to

The Artist's Betcha By Golly Wow! ends its first full week on the airwaves by jumping 73-33, fuelled by 38 plays from Capital, delivering 32.5% of its overall audience - a fact that illustrates the low level of support the record is getting from Radio One, where Prince records are normally received favourably.

One of radio's favourite acts, The Beautiful South, amass 126 plays for their new single Don't Marry Her in its first week on the airwaves, enough for it to debut just outside the published chart at number 55.

An act which almost invariably achieves a higher position in the airplay chart than the CIN sales listing, the group has never been one that has courted controversy, but Don't Marry Her didn't get any play at all from radio as an album track, as the chorus "Don't marry her, have me" as it appears on the single edit was rendered as "Don't marry her, fuck me", while the lyrics also originally referred to bollocks.

To illustrate just how popular The Beautiful South are on the airwaves, their recent number one airplay hit Rotterdam has spent 11 weeks on the Top 30 so far and only eases down one notch (6-7) despite the competition now provided by Don't Marry Her.

The highest new entry to the Top 50 is Warren G & Adina Howard's What's Love Got To Do With It, which was last week's top breaker and now debuts at number 11. It further illustrates the fact that, even though it is undergoing something of a renaissance at retail, rap records rarely manage to snare serious airplay until they have proven themselves at retail.

One notch ahead of Warren G, Jamiroquai's Cosmic Girl jumps 26-10. The only unreleased single in the Top 30, it is one of a long line of airplay hits for Jamiroquai and is getting extremely widespread support, including 21 plays from Radio One, where Shed Seven's Chasing Rainbows takes over at the top with 27 plays. The station delivered 76% of the track's audience last week. Alan Jones number eight with their Christmas Party LP. It holds at eight again this week, despite some confusion in the market, where there are at least two other Smurfs Christmas albums available at budget prices, licensed from leaner times.

Oasis' hold on the lower reaches of the singles chart has loosened a little this week. They now have no singles at all in the Top 40 and just five in the Top 75 (down from nine). When noting Oasis' achievements last week, I erroneously suggested that Adam & The Ants were the last act to have four singles in the Top 40 when, in fact, it was The Jam who most recently did the trick, in 1983. My praise for Oasis on breaking the record for most weeks on the singles chart in one year caused annoyance to a couple of readers who thought the only valid exercise was to compare the number of weeks Oasis have spent in the Top 30 with former record holder Bill Haley. In fact, while Haley spent all his 110 weeks on the chart in 1956 inside the Top 30 - since that was as low as the chart went in those days - Oasis have spent a mere 17 weeks in the Top 30 this year. I still maintain that any act that can spend 117 weeks in the Top 75, as Oasis have this year, is doing pretty well.
