THE OFFICIAL UK CHARTS

For the first time in chart history, each of the top three singles is a new entry, with Gary Barlow debuting at number one ahead of George Michael and the Seahorses.

Barlow's Love Won't Wait - written by Shep Pettibone and a publicity-shy Madonna, whose name doesn't appear on the disc - is his second consecutive number one since going solo. Former colleagues Robbie Williams and Mark Owen have shown similar consistency with their first two solo hits peaking at two (Williams) and three (Owen). The second number one written by Madonna/Pettibone (the first was Maddy's own 1990 topper Vogue), Love Won't Wait sold more than 92,000 copies last week, 16,000 fewer than his first solo hit, Forever Love, managed on its first week. In addition to his solo number ones, Barlow topped the chart with Take That eight times between 1993 and 1996, and is the first artist to have 10 number ones in the Nineties.

Gary had to fight hard for his latest, however, and was actually lagging behind George Michael in the early part of the week. In the end, George's Star People 97 single sold 84,000. It's the fifth consecutive top three hit - albeit a completely re-recorded one - lifted from George's Older album, which was released a year ago next week. Older has thus far sold more than 1.5m copies and has never dropped below the number 25 position it has held for the past two weeks. It rebounds to 21 this week.

Meanwhile, Alright is the third consecutive Top 10 hit from Jamiroquai's triple platinum album Travelling Without Moving. It debuts at number six, equalling the peak of Cosmic Girl, while the first single from the album Virtual Insanity peaked at number three. None of them, however, is likely to show the tenacity of the US import version of Space Cowboy, which chalks up its 99th consecutive week in the Top 100 of the R&B chart, and its 87th week in the Top 200 of the singles chart this week. Its peak position in the latter is 99, and it has sold more than 30,000 copies so far, primarily because of the enduring popularity of the Morales mix of the track. Space Cowboy is particularly popular in Lancashire, the North-east, Yorkshire and - more expectedly - London. Its Lancashire sales are consistently double that expected for a record in its position in the national chart.

Last week's Top 10 albums were all by Brits, with the Charlatans, Supergrass, Spice Girls, Texas, the Brand New Heavies, Depeche Mode, the Chemical Brothers, Cast, Blur and the Lighthouse Family shutting out foreign competition. It was the first time the Top 10 artist albums have all been by Brits for exactly nine years - the April 30 1988 chart comprised Erasure, Fleetwood Mac, OMD, Iron Maiden, Bros, Jesus & Mary Chain, Wet Wet Wet, Pet Shop Boys, T'Pau and Climie Fisher. Fleetwood Mac did, of course, have a couple of Yanks in their ranks but the Brand New Heavies are similarly indebted to new American vocalist Siedah Garrett.

Finally, as Kavana's MFEO fades from memory, it's interesting to speculate whether or not Goodfellaz' Sugar Honey Ice Tea would have gained as much airplay if they had chosen its title using the same method. I think not. Sixteen years after we last won Eurovision with Bucks Fizz and Making Your Mind Up, the United Kingdom won the Grand Prix in Dublin on Saturday (3) with Love Shine A Light, written by Kimberley Rew and performed by Katrina & The Waves. The British entry went ahead after the fourth jury (Austria) declared and went on to win by the biggest margin in the competition's history. It scored points from all the other 24 juries, being placed first by 10 of them and second by another five. It scored 227 points out of a possible 238, a strike rate of 78.9%. The only song ever to take a higher percentage of the vote was the Brotherhood Of Man's Save Your Kisses For Me, which took 80.4% of the points on offer while winning for the UK in 1976.

Britain has now won the competition outright four times, Sandie Shaw providing our first victory in 1967 with Puppet On A String. France has also won four times while Ireland has had a remarkable seven victories, including four in the past five years. It finished second on Saturday, 70 points behind the UK. Turkey was third with 121 points, while Norway and Portugal scored the fabled nul points, Norway doing so only two years after it won the competition.

Jubilant UK Eurovision supremo Jonathan King says, "I'm over the moon...it's my third year and I was prepared to give up last year when Gina G's Ooh Aah...Just A Little Bit ought to have won. The BBC persuaded me to give it one last year and we've pulled it off."

King reckons, "Love Shine A Light was the best song and Katrina was the best performer - she really knew how to put it across."

The BBC has yet to decide where to stage next year's competition, the 43rd. Alan Jones

Texas's Halo slips from one to five this week as Shola Ama's cover of Randy Crawford's You Might Need Somebody takes pole position.

Shola's hit was aired 1,931 times last week but had only a marginally bigger audience than Robbie Williams' Old Before I Die, which holds at number two with 1,465 plays.

Although Robbie's single is now showing signs of fatigue, it is a bigger airplay hit than former colleague Gary Barlow's Love Won't Wait, which has found support hard to come by. It climbs 16-11 this week, while Gary's previous solo hit, Forever Love, was number one on the airplay chart by the time it was commercially released.

Surprisingly, Radio One is still one of Robbie's biggest supporters, playing Old Before I Die 29 times last week, putting it in a three-way tie at the top of the station's playlist alongside the Cardigans' Lovefool and Olive's You're Not Alone. The latter disc is attracting a lot of support elsewhere too, and climbs 36-18 on the airplay chart this week, eclipsing its performance when initially released last autumn.

The hottest addition to most playlists is new teen sensation Hanson's Mmmh, which vaults 52-21 nationally, with support from Radio One, where it ranks 19th, and ILR, where it climbs 151-34. Alan Jones
