CHART COMMENTARY

by ALAN JONES

Robbie Williams joins the exclusive group of artists to register five Top 20 hits from an album this week, debuting at number three with Let Me Entertain You. It sold over 70,000 units last week, and is the second highest charted hit from the album, trailing only Old Before I Die, which peaked at number two – though the biggest hit by far, of course, is Angels, which finally peaked at number four on its 11th week in the chart, and is still very much a feature of the Top 40 after 16 weeks, declining just two notches this week to number 23, having topped 750,000 sales on Saturday. The success of Let Me Entertain You gives new impetus to Williams' Life Thru A Lens album, which holds at number four this week, scant reward for a 26% increase in sales.

Run-DMC are comfortable chart champs but sales of It's Like That dipped by a third this week, and there's a very real possibility that they will have to yield right of way to Celine Dion again next week. Celine's My Heart Will Go On single increased its sales substantially again last week, and returns to number two. In a six-week chart run (1-2-2-1-3-2) it has sold 885,000 units, and should top 1m by next weekend, or shortly thereafter.

US R&B sensations Destiny's Child debut at number five with their first UK single No No No. They're the ninth all-girl group to hit a hit in 1998, following the Spice Girls, All Saints, Vanilla, Eternal, Allure, Solid Harmonie, Cleopatra and N-Tyce.

All Seeing I's wacky version of Beat Goes On debuts this week at number 11, thus beating by 18 places the highest position attained by Sonny & Cher's 1967 original. The All Seeing I version contains the sampled vocals of Cathy Rich, who was 12 when she recorded the track (on her father Buddy Rich's album Big Swing Face). A contract of her own, though interested parties should note that she is represented by Mike Hano (01923 896975).

Kylie Minogue seems to have got the upper hand once again in the battle of the Minogue sisters. Dannii climbed as high as number four with All I Wanna Do, the first single from her current album Girl, but had to settle for number 15 with Everything I Wanted and this week enters at 21 with Disremembrance – only a week after Kylie's latest, Breathe, debuted at number 14.

The Great British Song Contest was won by Where Are You, sung by Imaani. It will, of course, now go on to become a hit, though it has been conspicuously unable to breach the Top 75 so far – having debuted at number 96 last week, it has now dipped to number 99. The songs it defeated to become Britain's Eurovision Song Contest entry are also charting, with the Collective's When We're Alone (We Dream) at number 93, Alberta's Don't It Make You Feel So Good at number 106 and Sapphire's I'll Never Be Lonely Again at number 116.

by ALAN JONES

After a gap of 12 weeks, Celine Dion's Let's Talk About Love returns to the chart summit by virtue of an enormous 142% increase in sales last week. Now on its fifth week at number one, the album sold nearly 89,000 units to take its 18-week tally to more than 1,280,000. There are several reasons for this surge, including renewed advertising, the continuing success of its third single My Heart Will Go On and Mother's Day, which helped many MOR albums, and was the main factor behind the steep rise in demand for Lionel Richie's Truly - The Love Songs album, which returned to its peak position, jumping 16-5. The Corrs' wholesome family style makes them ideal fare for Mother's Day too, though the impressive moves made by Talk On Corners (50-14) and Forgiven Not Forgotten (113-49) probably owe more to their current tour and the televising of the concert which they performed at the Royal Albert Hall on St Patrick's night. Talk On Corners debuted at number seven last November but its current chart placing is its highest since, though it has sold over 128,000 units. Forgiven Not Forgotten peaked at number 36 two years ago, and is similarly in its best chart position since. It has sold slightly better - about 133,000.

Simple Minds have one of the finest album chart records of any act. From 1982's New Gold Dream (81, 82, 83, 84) to 1995's Good News From The Next World, every single one of the eight albums they released on the Virgin label reached the top three, with five of them going all the way to number one, including four in a row. Newly signed to Chrysalis, they resumed their singles chart career a fortnight ago by peaking at number 18 with Glitterball - the exact same position in which their last Virgin single, Hypnotised, peaked in April 1995. But their return to the album chart is rather more disappointing, with Neapolis debuting this week at number 19. Unless it improves, it will be their lowest-charting album since their Arista compilation Celebration peaked at number 45 in 1982.

versions of contemporary hits. It's Last's 62nd charted album in 31 years, his first for three years, and his highest charting since In Harmony reached number 28 in 1994.

It's rather more difficult to understand why Gnuwine's reissued Gnuwine... The Bachelor hasn't been more successful. Originally released last year, the young R&B star's album has thus far spawned four Top 20 hits - Pony (number 16), Tell Me Do U Wanna (number 16), When Doves Cry (number 10) and Holler (number 13), the latter hit arriving only a fortnight ago. Yet the album fell short of the Top 75 when first released, and even though it was reissued last week with a bonus album of mixes, its debut this week at number 74 is underwhelming, to say the least. Contrast this with Morcheeba, whose second album Big Calm is this week's highest debutant at number 18, massively improving on the number 70 peak of their only previous album, Who Can You Trust? Yet their most successful single reached only number 40 - and that was a couple of years ago.

COMPILATIONS

The Full Monty retains pole position this week, its third week at the summit, though the most successful of a raft of albums aimed at Mother's Day, Virgin/EMI's Superwoman, surges 7-2 and came close to topping it. The hot tip for next week, however, is Dance Nation 5, the latest Ministry Of Sound compilation to feature the mixing skills of Boy George and Pete Tong. The album debuts at number three, after selling nearly 31,000 units last week - a fine opening volley, though it has the potential to sell a great many more, as the last Boy George/Pete Tong mix album, The Annual III, has thus far sold 503,000 units in just five months.

One of the best performers on the compilation chart in the last month has been Virgin/EMI's Caribbean Uncovered, which has moved 12-10-14-18. Comprising more than three dozen tropical delights though primarily reggae, it is the musical companion to the highly successful Sky One TV documentary series, which regularly attracts an audience of a million - sky high for Sky. The album has sold 25,000 units so far, even though it includes a lot of overworked tracks.

Meanwhile, two albums in the Top 10 consist of classic cuts from the disco era. Columbia's Oh What A Night at number eight and warner.esp's Simply The Best Disco at nine both revisit the Seventies, and many tracks appear on both albums. The success of movies like Jackie Brown and Boogie Nights help to ensure that the appeal of albums like these is relatively undiminished by the passage of time.
