CHART COMMENTARY

by ALAN JONES

All Saints register their third consecutive number one single, debuting in pole position with Bootie Call. It sold more than 116,000 copies last week, achieving the highest one-week sale of any All Saints single to date, although it was considerably aided by the fact that its two CD formats were widely available at £1.99, while number one rivals Five's Everybody Get Up sold 89,000 copies at £3.99, netting a much bigger profit for their record company. Like their earlier number ones Never Ever and Under The Bridge/Lady Marmalade, Bootie Call is taken from All Saints' self-titled debut album. They're only the second girl group to have as many as three number one singles, the others being, of course, the Spice Girls, who have seven number ones to their name. The success of Bootie Call has boosted sales of the All Saints album, which climbs 19-17 this week. Although it has never managed to reach number one, it has sold more than 1.1m units.

Two months shy of its 46th birthday, the singles chart has its 800th number one, with All Saints' Bootie Call becoming the latest landmark. The last 100 number ones have been the quickest yet, with Bootie Call arriving less than five years after the 700th number one – Chaka Demus & Pliers' Twist & Shout.

The first 100 number ones took longest of all, with nearly seven-and-a-half years elapsing between the first – Here In My Heart by Al Martino in November 1952 and the 100th, Do You Mind by Anthony Newley. Typically, an interval of between five and six years is required for each 100 number ones.

First 400 took more than 24 years, and last 400 have taken less than 22 years. The landmark records and the dates on which they took the titles are – first number one: Here In My Heart – Al Martino (14 November 1952); 100th: Do You Mind – Anthony Newley (28 April 1960); 200th: Help! – Beatles (5 August 1965); 300th:

PERCENTAGE OF UK ACTS IN THE CHART

Demus & Pliers (8 January 1994).

All Saints' number one debut ahead of Five is a triumph for girl power over boy power, but Five can still point to an impressive ever-improving chart career, which has seen them reach the Top 10 with each of their first four singles, starting with Slam Dunk (Da Funk) at seven last December, followed by When The Lights Go Out (four), Got The Feelin' (three) and Everybody Get Up, the current number two.

Despite the high visibility of both All Saints and Five, however, I suspect that the biggest-selling and longest-lasting of this week's debuts will ultimately be 24-year-old US newcomer Jennifer Paige's Crush. Already a number three hit in her homeland, Crush debuts here at four. It's the biggest hit yet for German indie label Edel.

Meanwhile, Aerosmith register their biggest hit with I Don't Want To Miss A Thing, from the Armageddon movie soundtrack, debuting this week at 12.

CHART

by ALAN JONES

Boyzone and The Corrs continue their Celtic occupation of the chart summit, with the former again running out as chart champs, with a further 47,500 sales of Where We Belong proving just enough to see off Talk On Corners, although the gap between them shrunk from 12,900 to 2,300 sales in the week. Talk On Corners has now sold more than 700,000 copies while Where We Belong is up to 360,000.

With three new entries to the Top 10 for the second week in a row – as rare an occurrence here as it is common in the singles chart – Mike Oldfield leads the newcomers with Tubular Bells II at number five, followed by the Divine Comedy's Fin De Siècle at nine and James Horner's Back To Titanic at 10. The latter album is also a new entry at seven in America, and includes further incidental music from the record-breaking movie, as well as a new track featuring Maire Brennan (ex Clannad) and a remix of Celine Dion's love theme My Heart

ALBUM FACTFILE

While recording artists are forever going on about growing and changing, the Great British Public likes nothing more than a repeat dose of what it liked them for in the first place. Canny operators such as Meat Loaf and Jean Michel Jarre have finally learnt this lesson and released long-awaited sequels to acclaimed early works with spectacular results. Ditto Mike Oldfield, who has turned the trick twice now. Oldfield will forever be known for Tubular Bells, his introductory 1973 chart-topper. Having sunk as low as 49 with his 1990 album Amarok, Oldfield recorded Tubular Bells II in 1992, and was rewarded with his first number one album in 18 years. Having seen his subsequent Songs Of Distant Earth peak at number 24, Oldfield has wisely chosen to return to the bells, and Tubular Bells III is this week's highest debut, entering the chart at number four.

Will Go On including dialogue from the film. It sold nearly 14,000 copies last week. The original Titanic soundtrack, which topped the chart earlier this year, jumps 45-36, and has now sold more than 740,000 copies in Britain.

PERCENTAGE OF UK ACTS IN THE CHART

The Three Tenors phenomenon is on the wane. When Plácido Domingo, Jose Carreras and Luciano Pavarotti first joined forces for In Concert in 1990, the resulting album was a multi-platinum number one. Four years on, The Three Tenors in Concert 1994 was another chart topper, although it sold fewer copies and hung around the chart for a year less. Reunited for France 98, the latest album by the operatic heavyweights – The 3 Tenors In Paris – debuted at number 14 a fortnight ago, and has already slipped to 25. Worse still, Domingo's experimental foray into the non-classical arena with Por Amor has resulted in very disappointing sales, the album debuting at a lowly number 126 this week.

Tracy Chapman's self-titled 1988 album earns its highest overall chart placing in more than nine years this week, climbing 51-40. The album is also back at the top of the mid-price chart, after yielding to Massive Attack's Protection in recent weeks.

COMPILATIONS

After a four-week reign, Now That's What I Call Music! 40 is replaced at number one by The Ibiza Annual. Sales of both albums are down over the week, with Now! 40 dipping from 53,100 to 38,700 and The Ibiza Annual slipping from 47,700 to 40,700. But with nothing else near – Ibiza Uncovered 2 is ranked third with just 13,100 sales – that's enough for The Ibiza Annual to make a timely climb to number one. I say timely because this week is the club-owned label's fifth birthday, having first breached the charts with its debut release The Ministry Of Sounds – Sessions Volume 1 album on 11 September 1993. All subsequent albums on the label have performed well too, with the most recent Clubbers Guide To Ibiza, featuring mixes from Radio One twinpins

Judge Jules and Pete Tong selling nearly 150,000 copies since its release nearly three months ago. Meanwhile, Now! 40 has sold 430,000 copies in five weeks – though comparisons are worthless, as the Now! series is in a sales league of its own.

Following a long spell as the top soundtrack album, and a period behind Grease as the number two, The Full Monty has slipped into fourth place – and number 35 on the overall compilation chart – as new cinematic successes overwhelm it. Grease is still the top soundtrack, but the critically acclaimed Lock, Stock And Two Smoking Barrels debuts at number two (and at 18 on the compilation chart), while Armageddon, whence comes the current Armageddon hit I Don't Want To Miss A Thing, takes third place.
