THE OFFICIAL UK CHARTS SINGLES

CHART COMMENTARY

by ALAN JONES

While Travis are the only male act in the Top Five of the album chart, Oasis fulfil a similar role on the singles chart, where All Saints, Gabrielle, Christina Aguilera and Shania Twain fly the flag for females. Aguilera's second hit, What A Girl Wants, can't match the number one debut of her first, Genie In A Bottle, but makes a creditable debut at number three. Meanwhile, the remarkable Shania Twain success story continues with the sixth hit from her Come On Over album, Don't Be Stupid (You Know I Love You), debuting at number five. Remixed from the album – which will pass the 2.6m sales mark this week – Don't Be Stupid follows the previous Come On Over singles You're Still The One (number 10), When (number 18), From This Moment On (number nine), and the number three hits That Don't Impress Me Much and Man! I Feel Like A Woman!.

It was perhaps inevitable that Oasis would not be able to hold onto top spot on the singles chart – Go Let It Out is their fifth number one, and all five have spent just one week on top. What wasn't quite so predictable is the fact that its sales would drop off so steeply, falling from more than 180,000 to just more than 43,000 in a week – a decline of more than 76%, which far exceeds their previous singles.

Britain's Eurovision 2000 fate lies in the hands of Nicki French, who won the Song For Europe final on BBC 1 on Sunday afternoon after attracting 47,355 votes. Six Chix's Only The Women Know was second with 42,309 votes, and Catherine Porter was third, polling 29,348 votes for the song Crazy. Sexy Sadie's I Won't Let You Do This To Me was placed fourth but its points total were not announced. Nicki French had a number five hit with a Hi-NRG cover of Total Eclipse Of The Heart in 1995, and her Eurovision entry Don't Play That Song Again was penned by former Glitter Band members John Springle and Garry Shephard. More typically Eurovision than the others, as MW reported a fortnight ago it attracted less significant industry signing attention prior to the contest than the other three songs, while the Six Chix single was not only signed but also released before the final, though it makes a disappointing debut this week at number 72 on the chart.

MUSIC WEEK 26 FEBRUARY 2000

26 FEBRUARY 2000

by ALAN JONES

Gabrielle's Rise enjoys another week at number one comprehensively outselling Shania Twain's Come On Over, which moves 3-2, by a ratio of nearly five to three. Rise couldn't quite match the 57,000 sale which took it to the top of the chart last week, but its tally of more than 49,000 brings its total sales to date to more than 190,000.

There was a little benefit to be had from St. Valentine's Day sales at the start of the week but not as much as the week before. Consequently, sales of artist albums slumped by 14% last week. Every single album in the Top 10 - including Abba's Greatest Hits (up 11-7) and the Stereophonics' World Gets Around (up 14-9) - sold fewer copies than in the previous week.

Chances of a bumper audience for BBC's Gimme Some Truth documentary about the making of John Lennon's Imagine album were already slim when the programme was scheduled at 11.30pm on BBC last Sunday (13th). But the potential was further snookered by the over-running of the final of

The Cure register their 20th hit album in the UK with Bloodflowers, which is the highest new entry to this week's chart at number 14. The album, which sold just short of 10,000 copies last week is the third and final album in a trilogy which started with 1982's Pornography and continues with 1989's Disintegration. The group's only number one album, Wish, was released in 1992, while their last album of all-new material was Wild Mood Swings, which reached number nine in 1996. Since then their only release has been their second hits anthology Galore, which spanned the years 1987 to 1997 and should have been a big seller but somehow peaked at a lowly number 37. Bloodflowers marks the beginning of the Cure's third decade, though only guitarist, vocalist and songwriter Robert Smith remains from the original 1977 'Easy Cure' line-up.

the Benson & Hedges Masters snooker championship, which didn't finish until midnight. As a result, the remastered and repackaged Imagine debuted at just number 51 with sales just shy of 4,000.

Number one in America for a fortnight, D'Angelo's Voodoo album was never going to make the same kind of impact here, but its number 21 debut is perfectly respectable for the, especially as his only previous album, 1996's Brown Sugar, failed to chart at all.

Tracy Chapman's self-titled 1988 debut album spawned just one hit in Fast Car but has proved one of the most consistent sellers of recent years, helped partly by Boyzone's cover of Baby Can I Hold You Tonight and partly by generous discounting. It was the 66th biggest seller of 1999, with nearly 175,000 buyers - a remarkable figure for an 11 year old album. Chapman's last album, 1995's New Beginning, reached only 47 here. And despite critical acclaim, her latest album, Telling Stories, got off to an even less inspiring start last week, debuting at number 85.

COMPILATIONS

Sales of compilations held up well last week, topping the half million mark for the third frame in a row, thanks partly to a slew of new garage compilations which have been released to capitalise on the hot again genre. Garage was looking a bit sickly before Artful Dodger's Rewind and DJ Luck & MC Neat's Little Bit Of Luck helped to renew interest. Among the garage compilations currently enjoying sales success are Pure Silk - The Third Dimension (new at number 12), Pure Garage (number three) and Rewind - The Sound Of UK Garage, an album of garage favourites mixed by Artful Dodger which debuts at number one after selling more than 40,000 copies last week. It's the second Ministry Of Sound release to top the chart already this year, putting them well on schedule to equal last year's haul of six number ones.

One of the most successful compilations of last year was the Queer As Folk double, which was issued to tie-in with the controversial Channel 4 series. It remained popular long after the TV series had finished, selling 125,000 copies to finish as the year's 50th biggest selling compilation. The new series of Queer As Folk - if a two-parter can be called a series - started last week, and the accompanying Queer As Folk 2 album makes a decent dent on the chart, debuting at number five after selling nearly 19,000 copies last week. The debut release on the new Channel 4 Music label, it contains a similar mix of tracks as the first, with dance/NRG remakes once again dominating.
