THE OFFICIAL UK CHARTS SINGLES

CHART COMMENTARY

by ALAN JONES

After a period when it seemed we were getting out of the habit of having a new number one every seven days, Eminem's arrival at the top of the chart this week makes him the seventh artist to take pole position in as many weeks – and the first living American to take the throne since Afroman last October. The last time we had a longer string of different number ones in consecutive weeks was in 2000, when there were 12 in as many weeks, including Eminem's last single, Stan.

Kerry Katona must have had mixed feelings this week, knowing that either her former bandmates in Atomic Kitten or her husband Brian McFadden's string of consecutive number ones would be broken – but she probably did not think: both would come to an end. And it is not just down to Eminem – even if his Without Me had failed to top the list, neither Atomic Kitten nor Westlife are next in the pecking order. In fact, Liberty X would have stayed top.

Atomic Kitten were chasing their third

Eminem becomes the first rapper to have three number ones this week, debuting in pole position with Without Me, the first single from his upcoming (third) album The Eminem Show. Without Me sold more than 165,500 units last week, failing to match the 199,000 sales his last single Stan sold when it debuted at number one in December 2000 but beating the 86,000 his first number one The Real Slim Shady sold on its July 2000

SINGLE FACTFILE

debut. Sampling Buffalo Gals – and crediting Brits Malcolm McLaren, Anne Dudley and Trevor Horn as writers as a result – Without Me namechecks Limp Bizkit, Moby, Prince and the man many believe will himself have an 18th number one a few weeks hence, Elvis Presley. Stan mentions Phil Collins and The Real Slim Shady mentions Will Smith, Britney Spears, Christina Aguilera, Dr Dre and Fred Durst (Limp Bizkit).

number one in a row with It's OK. The first single from the girls' second album sold more than 82,000 units last week, which compares quite favourably with the first-week tally of their first number one Whole Again (69,300) but falls short of Eternal Flame's 142,000 opening. Westlife, meanwhile, were shooting for their 11th number one in 12 releases, their fourth in a row, their third from the current album World Of Our Own and their first self-penned with Bop Bop Baby. It fell well short, however, with sales of 47,500 being their lowest first-week tally to date and earning, by their standards, a puny number five placing.

Twenty-one-year-old Welsh songstress Jessica Garlick finished third equal in the Eurovision Song Contest with Come Back at the weekend. Her debut single – down to 17 on this week's chart – made the best showing by a UK entry since 1998, when Imaani was runner-up with Where Are You.

Californian metal band Korn's seven hit singles hitherto have had remarkably similar chart careers, all peaking in a narrow band between 22 and 26 and spending just two weeks on the chart. It remains to be seen whether or not their latest, Here To Stay, is more durable but it certainly is not rangebound, debuting this week at number 12.

CHART COMMENTARY

by ALAN JONES

Boy bands and teen idols have notoriously short careers, so Ronan Keating's sustained success as both a singles and albums act is remarkable. First with Boyzone and more latterly solo, Keating has made the Top 10 of the singles chart with each of his first 21 singles – a record – and number one with each of his first six albums. While a handful of other esteemed acts have had as many or more number one albums in a row (see above), the only other ones to compile such a sequence from the start of their career are The Beatles, who opened with a remarkable seven number one albums in just over three years until their sequence was ended by the release of A Collection Of Beatles Unreleased, a number seven "success" in 1966.

Keating also features on this week's second highest debut, Lulu's Together album, on which he joins the Scottish veteran for a rousing version of the Bob Seger hit We've Got Tonight. Boosted by the screening Of An Audience With Lulu on ITV two days before its release,

ALBUMS FACTFILE

Ronan Keating is in auspicious company this week, emulating The Beatles, Led Zeppelin, Rod Stewart, Abba and Robbie Williams by registering his sixth number one album in a row. Keating topped the chart four times with Boyzone and lands his second solo number one courtesy of Destination, which sold nearly 123,000 units last week. Keating's debut solo album Ronan sold more copies – nearly 176,000 – when it was released two years ago but Destination's debut tally beats the first-week sales of all the Boyzone albums save their last, the greatest hits set By Request, which opened with a whopping 329,000 sales three years ago. Boyzone's first album Said And Done debuted at number one in 1995 despite a low sale of just under 22,000, while the follow-up A Different Beat found more than 78,500 buyers on its first week in 1996.

Together sold more than 38,000 units last week, and debuts at number four to become the 53-year-old's most successful album by some distance. Amazingly, although Lulu has had 26 hit singles, her only previous appearances in the album chart came via 1971's budget release The Most of Lulu, which reached number 15, and 1993's Independence, which spawned four hits but peaked at number 67. Together uses the duets play previously employed by stars such as Tom Jones and Frank Sinatra (twice) to revitalise their careers. Among Lulu's other partners on Together are Paul McCartney, Atomic Kitten, Westlife, Sting and Elton John. On BBC's 5 Live to talk about the album last week, she seemed to know nothing about the album's least-known participants, Kerplunk, whom she has apparently never met, and indulged in some mild dissing of Tina Turner, who embargoed her contribution to the album at a late stage.

The Definitive Everly Brothers debuts at number 12 giving the veteran fraternal duo its highest charting album for 25 years. Meanwhile, helped by TV advertising and Radio 2 play of the single Don't Know Why, Norah Jones' debut album Come Away With Me has another great week, exploding 26-11 as its sales double.

COMPILATIONS

Increasing its sales by 2% over the tally which won it a number one debut on the compilation chart last week, Universal Music Television's Kiss set nevertheless cedes pole position to The Best Summer Album 2002, the first release in what one presumes will become a regular series from Sony TV/wsm. Not to be confused with EMI/Virgin's one-off 1997 release The Best Summer Album In The World...Ever!, which reached number three, the two-CD set includes recent chart-toppers such as Kiss Kiss by Holly Valance and Just A Little by Liberty X as well as older summer songs like Sex On The Beach by T-Spoon, Saturday Night by Whigfield and Sun Is Shining by Funkstar Deluxe featuring Bob Marley.

Four years ago, the start of the World Cup precipitated a downturn in sales as football is reserved their leisure time for watching the tournament instead of shopping for records. This year may well see a similar dip, but combining football with music is one way for the record industry to protect itself. Already the first football-related song has made its way into the singles chart – former England boss Terry Venables' England Crazy collaboration with Rider debuts this week at number 47 and chart compilers OCC have identified another 22 World Cup singles (full list at www.theofficialcharts.com/lowdown/worldcup/). There are also several official and unofficial albums aimed at the compilation market. The first one to make a real impact is the Virgin/EMI set Best Unofficial Footie Anthems Ever. Including You'll Never Walk Alone by Gerry & The Pacemakers, Three Lions '96 by the Lightning Seeds/Baddiel & Skinner and World In Motion by England/New Order, it debuts at number seven this week.
