2. Elvis Presley
For the third time in four weeks, Tony Christie's Amarillo prevents Elvis Presley from increasing his already record tally of number one singles still further. Three weeks ago, Presley reached number two with Devil In Disguise; a fortnight ago he did the same with Crying In The Chapel, and this week it is the turn of Way Down - the single that was out when he died in 1977 - to take runners-up slot, with first week sales of 26,783. Way Down moved 46-42 in the last chart before Presley died, but then vaulted to number four, and reached number one a week later.

3. BodyRockers
An instantly successful fusion of rock and dance, BodyRockers' debut single I Like The Way has already been a massive club hit, and makes its anticipated high debut on the singles chart at number three with first week sales of 21,373. Apparently recorded in just four hours by Kaz James and Dylan Burns - it paves the way for the BodyRockers' self-titled debut album, which is due for release on 9 May, and promises even more rock riffs over dance rhythms and even a ballad.

CELEBRITY MUSIC WEEK ONLINE TOO

All the sales and airplay charts published in Music Week are also available online every Sunday evening at www.musicweek.com

1. Akon
Second single Lonely is out a week today (May 2) but Akon's fanbase is swelling fast as the track - follow-up to the number five single Locked Up - accelerates 16-8 on TV airplay and 28-15 on radio airplay, and many have opted to buy his debut album, also entitled Lonely, instead. How many? Well, 39,954 of them last week alone - enough, in fact, for Lonely to jump to the top of the chart. The album has climbed for six weeks in a row, improving 33-32-31-16-5-2-1, and sold its 200,000th copy last week.

5. Razorlight
Apologies for stating that Somewhere Else is the first single from Razorlight's second album last week - in fact, it's been belatedly grafted onto the new "special tour edition" of their debut album Up All Night, which is now, therefore, home to five hit singles and leads 46-5 on the chart as Somewhere Else re-ignites demand. Although the album debuted and peaked at number three last July, and sold 455,253 copies in its original issue, it has not been in the top five for the last 29 weeks. The album sold 17,836 copies last week.

42. Jeff Buckley
Jeff Buckley's Grace album was adjudged the 61st Greatest Album in the same poll that elected Radiohead's OK Computer the best of all on Channel 4 the weekend before last - but Grace is the real winner, receiving such a boost from a well-excited segment about it that it rockets to number 42 on the chart - its highest position to date. Grace was the only studio album completed by Buckley before his death in 1997, and its previous best chart placing was number 44 last September, after a special edition CD/DVD pack was released. Sales of Grace since 1994 amount to 377,402 copies.

56. Radiohead
Chosen by viewers as number one on Channel 4's 100 Greatest Albums countdown OK Computer jumps to its highest position in six and a half years this week, re-entering the list at 56 with sales up 413% week-on-week to 4,975. Although OK Computer has sold well since its June 1997 release, its success in topping the poll against equally or more contemporary albums that have sold more copies is, surprising. Since its release, it has sold 1,221,934 - a total beaten by 72 other albums in the same timeframe.
